

Paint Millbrook

Art Contest Entries on display in the Georgetown Library Heritage Center until September 5th

The Cultural Council of Georgetown County hosted a special art competition entitled "Paint Millbrook," featuring the idyllic home built on Minim Creek in 1833.

The winning painting, submitted by Johnnie Cowan, will grace the invitation to this year's Chocolate Sunday event, held September 15, 2013 at the lovely Millbrook Plantation. This annual event is the primary fundraiser for the Cultural Council, and is hosted by the organization's Guild, and Millbrook owners Linda and Dan Ray.

There was also a cash prize for the winning artist. The collection is also slated to be exhibited at the Chocolate Sunday event.

Judges for the competition were Liz Miller, Curator of the Art Museum of Myrtle Beach, and noted illustrator and portrait artist Mark Hess of New York. Mr. Hess' work has appeared on multiple Time Magazine covers and several other publications.

Artists participating in the competition are Nancy Bracken, Johnnie Cowan, Annette Goings, Mike Bowers, Brenda Lawson, Bart Healy, Mary Morris, Patsy Givens and Lanie Cameron.
